Regulation of Public Service in India

948. SHRIMATI MOHSINA KIDWAI:
SHRI VIJAY J. DARDA:

Will the PRIME MINISTER be pleased to state:

(a) whether Government plan to provide statutory basis for the regulation of public service in India, to review and lay down the fundamental values of public service code of ethics, and protection of whistleblowers;

(b) if so, the details thereof; and

(c) in what manner Government would ensure public services as a professional and politically neutral, merit based and accountable for promoting good governance?

THE MINISTER OF STATE IN THE MINISTRY OF PERSONNEL, PUBLIC GRIEVANCES AND PENSIONS (SHRI SURESH PACHOURI): (a) to (c) the Government has emphasized the need to have a comprehensive Public Service Law/Act, which would be an umbrella Act to cover the numerous rules/regulations enacted earlier. Pursuant to this, the Government has drafted a Public Services Bill, 2006 which would provide a statutory basis for the regulation of Public Services in India, review and lay down the fundamental values of Public Services, the Public Service Code of Ethics, Public Service Management Code, Protection of Whisleblowers, Recruitment Code governing the Public Services and establish the Public Services Authority for facilitating review and proper development of public services as a professional, merit based & accountable instrument for promoting good governance and better delievery of services to the Citizens.
